Book Description

9–4. Vincent Figgins, two lines pica, Antique, c. 1815. The inspiration for this highly original design, first shown by Figgins, is not known. Whether Figgins, Thorne, or an anonymous sign painter first invented this style is one of the mysteries surrounding the sudden appearance of slab-serif letterforms.

My Description

I chose this picture because it reminds me of the fonts I use for my designs. I enjoy making old-style vintage posters, and I've used fonts that look like this before. Its simple yet is cool and catches my eye.
